10 McGill Students Of Beaver Brigade Return to Campus

After an extensive trip through many European countries, approximately 10 McGill students are now back on the campus. While overseas these students aided in reconstruction work on the rebuilding of Lidice in Czechoslovakia as well as on the Danube-Tisza river canal project in Hungary.

Some 14 Canadian students, representing McGill, Toronto and U.B.C., undertook this trip together with members of national youth organizations and trade unionists from British Columbia and Ontario. While on reconstruction work this group functioned as the Canadian Beaver Brigade—a term inaugurated last summer by another Canadian youth group, which included many McGill students, while doing reconstruction work in Yugoslavia.

Many Countries
The five month trip took the group through many parts of Europe, including Holland, Belgium, France, England, Switzerland, Czechoslovakia, Poland, Hungary, Austria, and Italy. Two weeks were spent at Lidice and another 11 days working on the canal projects.

Warsaw Conference
Several members of the Brigade attended the Warsaw Conference of Working Youth. There were 46 nations represented at this conference, which drew up a charter on the requirements of youth in the present day world.

The destruction of Warsaw left a vivid impression on the Canadian delegates, who related that the city was about 90 percent destroyed, although wonderful reconstruction work was being carried out.

Aim To Better
One of the members of the group, Harold Horn, said that while all the countries visited were still suffering from the effects of the recent war, there was everywhere, evident a wholehearted will to better their lot and improve their standard of living. Life in Europe today is a great deal better than it was three years ago, but the people hope to raise themselves, if possible, still higher. "There is a wonderful job of reconstruction being done in all the countries we visited," he went on, "especially in the more damaged ones such as Poland and Hungary."

Meeting To Be Held
In order to give all McGill students a chance to hear the impressions of those who went on this trip and to permit questions to be asked as to European conditions, an open meeting is to be held in the early part of next week.

McDonald and Dogherly Win Eng. Elections

In the elections for second Vice-President of the Engineering Undergraduates' Society held yesterday, Albert McDonald emerged victorious over George Sobering by a clear majority of 253 votes. The final counts were as follows: McDonald, 422; Sobering, 169. The voting was fairly heavy as 591 votes went to the polls to elect their new Vice-President.

DOGHERTY.
In the other undergraduate election held yesterday, Don Dogherly won the decision over Gilles Gagnon, and is the new S.E.C. representative for engineering and architecture. Thus, the new representative to the S.E.C. for the Faculty of Engineering and the School of Architecture is an engineer, by virtue of his victory over Gagnon of Arch. 5.

Meeting of the Girls' Union Lacks Quorum

The Women's Union's Semi-Annual meeting which was to be held yesterday afternoon was cancelled because of the presence of fewer than sixty members. In its place, an unofficial meeting was held to acquaint the students with the officers and the activities of the many different clubs and societies.

RYAN RAN IT
In the absence of the Union's president, Joan Radley, who was ill, vice-president Ann Ryan introduced the members of the executive and members at large and denied the Daily's rumors of president Joan's resignation. A Treasurer's report by Dorothy Stalker stated the Union's treasury had a balance of $10,038.65.

PUBLICATIONS
Ann told of the Union's two publications, the Women's Union Handbook, which was sent to each freshman at the beginning of the term, and the Miss McGill, a monthly magazine to be published for the first time next month.

She advised the members that the annual fashion show was to be cancelled until spring and that on Nov. 7 the first Gym Nite and Vocational Guidance meeting would be held. Buffet suppers and get-togethers on Sunday nights will commence soon, she stated.

The arguments for the affirmative, summarized, were: Easier transportation in less crowded trams; less congestion in corridors and the advantage of smaller classes, now impossible under the present schedule; more time for after-class employment; increase in time available for library work, resultant decrease in student night life and a safer crossing of Sherbrooke Street. The argument for the negative: Difficulty of awakening in time for the classes starting at 8:00; transportation difficulties; pressure on kitchen staff of various college residences, as well as upon certain professors who in some cases must give evening lectures; cloudy minds and thoughts resulting from loss of sleep; family disruption; increase in first class absenteeism which is alarming even under the present schedule of first periods at 9:00, and the fact the present regime is generally satisfactory.

Debate Teams In Competition For Trophies

Three debating trophies, the Bovey Shield, the Papineau Cup, and the Reford Challenge Cup, will be contested this year under the auspices of the McGill Debating Society. The Bovey Shield tournament will take place sometime in November and the Papineau and Reford Challenge Cups will be offered for competition before Christmas.

1st-Year Students
Students at McGill who have not previously attended any university are eligible to compete for the Bovey Shield. The subject to be debated is announced on the morning of the contest and the freshman may speak in English or French, selecting the affirmative or the negative side, whichever he prefers. The time limit is five minutes, during which the speaker may use notes but must not read his speech.

Papineau Cup
Participation in the preliminary round of the Papineau Cup tourney is open to any male undergraduate, who has a flair for impromptu public-speaking. Judges will select the two best speakers, basing their decision on language, delivery, matter, and ability to convince. The finals will take place at a later date.

'The Drunkard' First Play of New Venture

The modern version of the old time melodrama, "The Drunkard," which is coming to Sir Arthur Currie Gym Saturday at 2 p.m., is the opening production of a new Canadian theatre venture—The New World Theatre Company. The company is composed of Canadian professional stage artists from all parts of the country, and is presented by Brian Doherty, noted Canadian playwright and producer, who has brought many brilliant attractions to Canada during the past few seasons.

The New World Theatre Company is Mr. Doherty's answer to the widespread demand for professional stage opportunities in Canada for our own foremost talents. After months of research, auditions and try outs, he has selected a highly talented group for which he has great expectations. All the actors are Canadians; many of them received their early training in leading amateur companies across the country; some of them have returned from London and New York to join The New World Theatre Company.

Perhaps the best known member of the company is the brilliant comedian, John Pratt, from Montreal. Many will remember his remarkable performance in the stage and film production of "The Navy Show," which, after touring Canada, played for months to packed houses in London's West End. His song, "You'll Get Used To It," was the hit of the show. He is famous for his hilariously satirical songs and sketches, and has made many successful night club and film appearances in recent years.

Three of the company, Murray Davis, Charmion King, and Araby Lockhart, got their start at Hart House Theatre in Toronto, where they played many leading roles. Last year they made their professional debuts in the U.S.A. and played with such American stars as Ilka Chase and Elissa Landi. Mr. Doherty brought them back to take

Prof. Harrop Announces New Language Study Plan

Professor L. B. Harrop head of the McGill Spanish department, announced in an interview yesterday his intention of forming a mutual study scheme for Canadian and Latin-American students. The plan calls for the close association of one student from each of these language groups to learn the other's tongue.

To Learn English
There have been a few requests by Latin-Americans to meet English speaking students to help them understand English, and to explain the intricate phrases used in English texts. This is a great opportunity for those Canadians interested in learning and speaking idiomatic Spanish. Professor Harrop proposes to set up a bureau to facilitate the contact of two students who would give up at least two Gill to Draw Toronto Billet Today at 5p.m.

Tonight at five o'clock, on the Arts Building steps, President Bob Gill will pick the winning tickets in the Charity Campaign's Toronto trip raffle. Until that time, though, tickets will be on sale at the Union Tuck Shop or from any of the pretty co-eds selling them about the campus. So today is your last chance to win an all expense trip to the game in the Queen City this week-end.

The prizes, you remember, include: a return ticket on the McGill Special to Toronto; a room for two nights at the famous Royal York Hotel; and one of the best reserved seats at the game. There will be two winners.

Today, then, is your last chance to take a chance on a free trip to Toronto. We can't all win, but the cause is a worthy one.

(N.B. to all ticket sellers: Stubs and unused books must all be turned in to George at the Union Tuck Shop with cash before 4.30 this afternoon.)

Your Roving Reporter The Question of the Week

By Gerald N. F. Charness

Before starting the question of the week, since this is a new column, I would like to tell you a little about it. Starting today and continuing during the remaining weeks of the term there will appear in The Daily a column entitled "The Roving Reporter," in which students will discuss various questions pertaining to campus life. The questions asked will be chosen from a list of requests which we hope you, the readers, will send in. All questions should be addressed to the Roving Reporter, c/o The McGill Daily, 690 Sherbrooke W.

The question for this week is one which was chosen chiefly because of the interest shown by the students themselves in this particular topic. During the past few days there has been much talk around the campus about the advisability of having female cheer leaders and drum majorettes at McGill. In the past it has been the policy of the university not to have them. However, owing to the aforesaid interest, I decided to see what the students really thought about it. Thus the question for this week is: "Should we have cheer-leaders and drum-majorettes at McGill?"

The first person interviewed was a first year Commerce student, Melvil Pollack, who stated, "Yes, we should have them, because they not only add colour to the games and to the band but also I feel they would also be a major factor in increasing our school spirit and the moral support of our team."

My next interviewee was AL Tunis, former editor of The Daily. He said: "I don't think there is any harm in having female cheer leaders provided that the students look

Auditions for Radio Show This Evening

Under the direction of Conrad Shatner, the first auditions of the season for the Radio Workshop will be held this evening at 8:15 P.M. in the studios of CJAD on Mountain street.

The play "Meridian 7-1212" will be produced this season. The script, calling for a large cast, will enable new members of the Radio Workshop to gain experience in radio dramas.

Persons interested in the production are asked to be present for tonight's auditions so that a variety of voices may be heard. Casting may not be completed this evening since it depends on the amount of time required to audition each person.

Rehearsal and recordings will be completed next Thursday. In order to meet this schedule, persons interested in radio dramas are invited to attend the auditions tonight.

New Political Forum Set for Dawson Tonite

Due to the greatly increased enthusiasm in politics at Dawson this year it has been decided to activate once again the Political Forum, after being dormant for the immediate past year.

An organizational meeting has been called for this evening, Thursday, to be held at 7:00 P.M. in Room 12 of Dawson Hall.

This meeting is of great importance to all those interested in politics on the Dawson Campus. If sufficient enthusiasm is shown by the turnout, the club will be reorganized and elections held.

Last evening at 5:15 the McGill Student Labor Club opened this year's first meeting in a Union Ballroom that was silent with tension. The suspense and expectant atmosphere was heightened by the presence of several members of the Montreal press.

In the chair was Jack Bowie-Reed, recently elected president of the group, whose right to office has been severely criticized and disputed by many S.L.C. members. On his right sat his vice-president, Zbigniew Brzezinski, on the left Clarence Fiske, the membership secretary.

Mr. Bowie-Reed rose confidently to open the meeting. He explained that Mr. McManus, the guest speaker, would not be present, and that the open meeting's purpose was the clarification and realignment of policy, not the management of club business or elections.

As he spoke, Bob Morgan, a member of the last year's executive, picked the meeting. He paced back and forth across the floor before the chair, drawing cheers and jeers from the crowd. During a lull in the uproar, Morgan shouted out "I am waiting for an authorized member of the club to open the meeting." Since the chair chose to ignore the interruption, the picketing ceased shortly. No further demonstration was made.

Bowie-Reed went on to say that he and most of his present executive would resign, but only after the club's membership had swelled and broadened to include representatives of all political leanings.

"Several major unions have already been contacted. We intend to present speakers not only of Communist affiliated organizations but of all major unions that will accept our invitation," he said.

Emphasizing Mr. Bowie-Reed's address, Zbigniew Brzezinski defined the policy of the new executive board and the present aims of the organization. He stated that the prosperity of this country can only be achieved through the co-operation of labor and capital and not through the class struggle "fostered by Communists."

He further defined the new policy when he said that the club's aim is to stimulate student interest in labor problems and to establish

McGILL PUBLICATIONS

Publications dependent on advertising for a large share of their revenue will never find better times than today. In the face of growing competition, and with ample funds in their coffers from the prosperous business of the past few years, companies are advertising more than they ever did before.

As a result, income from advertising has shown a general upswing in all publications. Increased production costs have taken a large bite into this revenue, but profits have certainly increased.

With this situation, one would expect that the publications on this campus, the Annual and the Forge, would today be in a position to offer more than ever before to the students, and for less money. Certainly they should be solvent.

However the financial statements recently submitted by these organizations show that they are in a dangerously weak position. Some twenty per cent of the receipts from student fees had to be allocated to these organizations to cover the losses they sustained.

This alone is a sufficient reason to sit up and demand an examination into the organizations. But that is only part of the picture. Last year less than fifteen hundred students subscribed to the annual. And many less than one thousand bought the Forge. The large subsidy made to these publications actually benefited a relatively small portion of the campus.

Grants in the sums of thousands of dollars should be made only where at least the majority of the campus will benefit.

The problem is the result of the method of distribution of these publications. The annual subscription campaign generally comes rather late in the session, and a great many students at that time simply haven't the money to buy. The five dollar-charge that was found necessary last year and is to be repeated this year is clearly too high for the average student budget.

Two solutions are (a) to reduce the size and quality of the annual to bring the price down, and (b) to find means of increasing distribution to a level where the reduced marginal cost will be sufficient to permit a reduction in the subscription price.

The second alternative is obviously to be preferred to the first. And it could be achieved if all the students were to subscribe to the annual. In fact if all the students bought the annual, it could probably be improved, and sold for as little as three dollars and fifty-cents.

Full subscription cannot be approximated by the open subscription method the Annual editors are saddled with now. The only way it can be achieved is with regular subscription collected with student fees.

Many universities across the continent today have publication fees paid by all students. All monies for publications are drawn from this fund. As a result of the large circulation achieved, more firms advertise—generally at increased rates.

The increased revenue and circulation permit large cuts in subscription prices.

Such a policy on this campus would give us an annual that is within the budget of all students. And it would also make available monies for magazine publications such as the Forge, a humor magazine, etc.

Patterson Greene's Papa Is All

by Bob Robinson

The Trinity Players presented an extremely interesting play last night at Trinity Memorial Hall. It is "Papa Is All" by Patterson Greene, directed by Basil Donn.

The play concerns the Pennsylvania-Dutch Aukamp family. Mrs. Aukamp, and her two children, Jake and Emma are in constant terror of Papa Aukamp, a bigoted domineering, and selfish man. Papa is enraged because Emma went to the movies in town with the County surveyor, and orders Jake to drive him to town so that he may shoot Emma's lover. On the way, Jake knocks Papa out and stows him on a freight train. The rest of the family doesn't know this until Papa comes back, furious, but claiming he has shot the survivor anyway. It turns out, though, that Papa has shot the wrong man, and he is arrested and put in jail.

The make-up, in some cases was a trifle overdone; but the costuming, lighting, and staging were excellent.

Paulle Clarke, as the mother, at times moved and spoke in a way that belied the age she was supposed to be. At other times she overacted a bit, and at the beginning was not so sure of her lines. Most of the time, however, she was excellent. She managed her dialect better than anyone else, and played to advantage her role as the one in the middle of the tug of wills between Papa and the children.

Jean Dent, as Emma gave a stir-

The Daily Meets . . .

Mme. Pierre Casgrain

by B. A. H.

To many Mrs. Pierre Casgrain is the charming chairman of the non-political Canadian Association of Women voters, a pioneer in the suffrage movement, one of the Vice-Chairmen of the C.C.F. party, and a dynamic influence in the improving of Quebec's social welfare schemes. But in this public stereotype many may not know that she is a strong family woman with four grown children and that her efforts are directed by a deep seated feeling for her fellow man.

I did not have the usual cross-fire type of interview with Mrs. Casgrain. Instead, I found myself comfortably settled in the Casgrain living room contributing to the conversation. Until I heard the friendly "bonsoir" as I left, I had quite forgotten that this so-called interview had been squeezed into her supper hour.

Fighting at Twenty
She had anticipated my question on her connections with woman's rights, she told me that her initiation into her long struggle for Quebec women began when she joined a group of women including Lady Drummond, Mrs. John Scott and Carry Derrick the first woman professor at McGill University—to fight for Women's rights, and specifically women's suffrage. She had been twenty years old, recently graduated from Sacred Heart Convent, and married to Pierre Casgrain the year before. She "studied by living" and her husband's active interest and career in Quebec's social and economic life as well as his encouragement of his wife gave her all the necessary impetus that she needed. Social attitudes towards women soap-boxes at that time were in a state of flux, and women in her position were gradually becoming accepted as "odd" and not branded as "awful".

Struggle Forgotten
Mrs. Casgrain has witnessed the long transition of the acceptance of equality of women, which she says reflects the entire attitude of acceptance by society of social change generally. But it required many struggles that frequently the youth of today forget, and as well left behind it many lags that the youth of today must continue to fight against. She warns youth against considering politics "a dirty game", but rather they should consider politics an institution to be employed in promoting the common good.

A WOMAN'S DUTY

Mrs. Casgrain, as chairman of the Canadian Association of Women Voters, hopes that this growing organization will extend its boundaries beyond Quebec to encompass the whole of Canada. She feels that it is a woman's duty to become interested in political and social affairs, and thus to contribute in a positive way to their country.

"I am a minor in the eyes of the law," Mrs. Casgrain burst out defiantly. "I am lucky I have a good husband and therefore do not need the law; it is for those women who do not have good husbands that we must think, feel, and work for." In the province no woman is allowed the right to own property, to have an operation without her husband's signature, to legally sign a document. It is in this sphere of civil rights that Mrs. Casgrain is at present working.

CHILD PROBLEM

For seven years Mrs. Casgrain has as well worked for a cohesive child protection law, that would deal with all aspects of child welfare. Again it is Quebec who has succeeded in being the laggard amongst Canada's provinces in adopting such a law.

Social problems and an earnest desire to see the economic conditions improve that produce these problems, lead Mrs. Casgrain to the C.C.F. movement. It has taken much thought and study to join the C.C.F., said Mrs. Casgrain and she went on to explain, "the decision was a serious one in my case." With her experience in social problems she believes that Socialism must come.

As I was leaving she said to me, "An English philosopher once said that 90 per cent of the population would rather die than think," and added on her own, "and feel for other people without thought of profit."

McGill Chamber Music Society Concert Season Commences

Another series of concerts by the McGill Chamber Music Society was started on Tuesday evening with a performance by the McGill String Quartet. It was a fine beginning from almost all aspects: choice of program, quality of playing and good interpretation.

The first number was the Mozart Quartet in D major, K499 which was given a particularly good rendition. The Menuetto contained some very notable phrasing and was kept at a moving tempo. This work is quite suited to the playing of this combination as it requires considerable musical finesse but is not too demanding technically. This is a very musically understanding group but stilled playing is usually the result of too difficult movements. The Allegro movement of the Mozart falls into this category although criticism should be allayed because of the beautiful voicing which it contained. Taken as a whole, the Quartet was most enjoyable and satisfying to the listener.

STRIKING AND SUBTLE
There is little criticism which one can offer against the performance of Dohnanyi's Serenade in C major, for violin, viola and cello. Each movement contained some striking bit of beauty which will make it memorable for those who were fortunate enough to be present. Mrs. Bratt is to be specially complimented on her subtle accompaniment in the Scherzo.

SOCIETY THANKED

All Montreal music lovers will join in thanking the Society for arranging a performance of the all too rarely heard Septet in E flat Major of Beethoven. While the rendition did not live up, technically, to the rest of the program, the mere fact of being able to hear this music was immensely satisfying. It is understandable that the larger group of players would tend to make playing somewhat more awkward than for the smaller group in quartets; what is hard to understand, however, is why there was so much off-pitch playing by the strings. The most enjoyable movement was probably the Menuetto, the theme of which is also found in the piano sonata Opus 49 No. 1.

While the concert was not without its faults, however, we must remember at all times that this is the only active Montreal chamber music group. We are much indebted to it for bringing us music which we would otherwise have great difficulty in hearing—G. J. E.

Y.M.H.A. CONCERT

Nora Drewett and Geza Dekres, a sonata team, will play at the Y.M.H.A. auditorium tonight. Their programme will include a Mozart sonata, and a sonata by Beethoven, Opus 47, familiarly known as the Kreutzer sonata.

Letters to the Editor

... student laborers mix it

Mr. Adam

I should like to answer the letter of Mr. G.G. Turner which was published in yesterday's Daily.

The "small group" which was dissatisfied with the "Monday election of the S.L.C." includes four members of the legal executive. These are George Neupiel, President, Harold Horn, secretary, Dave Holland, and myself. All these are responsible and legally elected members of the S.L.C. executive.

Secondly, the "Provisional Committee" referred to by Mr. Turner, and which called the Monday meeting at which "the election" took place was a convenient fabrication on the part of Mr. Bowie-Reed. Neither Dave Holland, Sam Wigdor, or myself ever had any meeting with Mr. Reed, nor did we have any part in calling the Monday meeting.

Thirdly, Mr. Turner states that the Monday meeting was called "for the express purpose of holding elections." No doubt Mr. Reed had this purpose in mind but he made no mention of this to the "Provisional Committee" nor did he state this fact in the Friday notice in the Daily. Also "the agenda with many important points" (see Friday's Daily) to say nothing of the election was carried out in about ten minutes.

Fourthly Mr. Reed is the only member of the Monday Executive who is a member of the S.L.C.; all the others and those who voted for them are not members of the S.L.C. nor do they have membership cards. I would like to point out further what a farce this "Provisional Committee" which Mr. Reed and I were supposed to be members of. It was only on Monday after his meeting that I first had the pleasure of meeting Mr. Reed. For some reason he didn't seem at all pleased to see me and in his haste to get away curiously forgot to mention that he had been elected president of the S.L.C. Perhaps if he had told me I might have congratulated him on his good fortune.

Fifthly, Mr. Turner then goes on to say that the S.L.C. did not do a good job last year. If this criticism had been made by a group of staunch members we would take note of this, but coming from Mr. Turner and Company the charge smells because none of this group ever helped to promote such projects as the large open meetings, the public opinion poll or the study group on Quebec labor laws and

Dear Sir:

Mr. G. G. Turner stated in a letter to the "Daily" that a "provisional committee" of the Student Labor Club, consisting of Mr. C. J. Bowie-Reed, Mr. Jack Adam, Mr. Sam Wigdor, and myself, called a meeting for the purpose of electing an S.L.C. executive for the coming year.

I was never informed that a meeting was called for this purpose.

After consultation with Mr. Adam and Mr. Wigdor, I have come to the conclusion that Mr. Bowie-Reed called this meeting entirely on his own initiative. I strongly object to the use of my name by Mr. Bowie-Reed and his group to condone their action, which is in violation of the constitution of the S.L.C.

DAVID HOLLAND.

Mr. Wigdor

Dear Sir:

In Mr. Turner's letter published in yesterday's Daily he stated that a provisional committee of the S.L.C. consisting of Dave Holland, Jack Adam, Jack Bowie-Reed, and myself had called a meeting for Monday at 1 p.m., for the purpose of electing officers of this club. I would like to point out to Mr. Turner and everyone concerned that I was never present at a meeting of this "provisional committee" at which the Monday meeting was supposed to have been planned. I have subsequently heard that neither Jack Adam or Dave Holland were present at this conference to organize an election meeting.

Therefore I am left to conclude that the fourth member intended to use this meeting in order to elect himself and his cohorts. Furthermore the election of officers should logically have taken place upon the return from Europe of the members of last year's executive.

I refuse to have my name used to cover up any underhand dealings of Mr. Bowie-Reed and those friends of his who were not and are not S.L.C. members.

Sincerely,

SAM WIGDOR.

Mr. Brzezinski

Dear Sir:

In view of the fact that certain dissatisfied elements are flooding the Daily with inflammatory propaganda against the newly elected executive of the Student Labor Club, I feel it to be my duty to state the following:

The new executive was elected at a membership meeting, duly publicized in the Daily. All participants were members of the Club, according to the specification of the Constitution.

The dissatisfied elements finding that their former supremacy in the Club has become a thing of the past had refused to participate in the meeting, about which they knew, hoping that by their boycott they may invalidate the proceedings. On that slender basis rests their case.

A general meeting of the club was held in which plans for the present session was discussed. Apart from a single picket, who thus amused our meeting, no former officer appeared to challenge our legality.

In view of the fact that our case is entirely within the spirit and the law of the Constitution, it is to be hoped that these dissatisfied elements cease their pathetic efforts to disrupt the activities of our club and instead proceed to pay up their membership fees for this year.

Yours Truly
Zbigniew Brzezinski,
Vice-President S.L.C.

Dear Sir:

On behalf of the Student Labor Club I wish to commend Messrs. Sam Wingate, Dave Holland, and John Adam on the excellent work done in publicizing the SCL on the SEC night. Furthermore I feel that Mr. Adam is to be congratulated for his efforts in arranging to have Mr. MacManus speak in our open meeting.

We are pleased that the previous executive realized its duty in continuing in office until the newly elected executive was ready to assume the responsibility. The new executive of the SLC appreciate the efforts of the retiring club officers and wishes to assure all McGill students that we shall continue to provide an active programme for all our members. We hope, however, that the retiring executive will from now on leave all further publicity in the hands of the duly elected publicity director.

Yours truly,
ZBIGNIEW BRZEZINSKI,
Vice-President, S.L.C.

McGill Edges Macdonald in Intermediate Track Meet

Campbell Primes Redmen For Oncoming Campaign

For the past two weeks Dave Campbell, McGill's noted mastermind of the ice wars, has been drilling his puck hopefuls in his usual efficient and workmanlike fashion. The Redmen have been working out at the Forum whenever the ice is available, from 12.30 to 1.30 p.m.

Tuesday noon Coach Campbell put his charges through a strenuous work-out. Fifteen puck-chasers were on hand as the master cracked the whip and had the boys going hard both ways.

JACK IS BACK
Jack Gelineau and Norm Morse performed in the nets with Moose Gosselin and Jack Hennessy combining on one defence duo. Due to a shortage of available rear-guarders, Ross Parsons, star winger for the Juniors and Intermediates last season, was paired off with Johnny Vincelli on the other defence.

Campbell had Reggie Sinclair centering blonde Charlie Sanderson and Tommy Hale on that appears to be, at this point, the most formidable attacking formation in the training camp. It should be noted, however that all lines are at present only tentative and probably will be juggled considerably before their intercollegiate season gets underway.

Another trio saw Phighting Phil Henry of Dawson fame, flanked by little Charlie Lafontaine, who starred with the Inter Braves last year, and Jimmy Atkinson of the seniors in 47-48. A third line had newcomer Bob Payette, who chased pucks for Dawson last year, between Bob Russell and Johnny Brough. Russell is a former Junior star and Brough played for McGill seniors two years ago.

Dave Hackett and Doug Heron both of whom were members of the Clan Campbell last year, are expected to make determined efforts to make the grade again when the football schedule finishes. Warren Chippendale, senior winger in 47-48, was injured in the team's only exhibition game to date and is expected to be out of action for a while.

So far the Redmen have been tested under fire only once. They were beaten soundly by the Cornwall Calumets of the Eastern Canada Hockey League 9-4 at the factory town last Tuesday. However, Jack Gelineau was not on hand for the clash and his absence probably made all the difference in the score.

This is by the way of an explanation for those who still do not understand the new intra-mural set-up in girls sports. There is no such thing as inter-section competitions. You no longer play for your year in all the sports; this is with reference to basketball this year to increase the number already registered. If you want to play basketball you don't wait for a team captain (Continued on Page 4.)

McGill made it three straight by the 220's had been run, but winning the Intermediate Intercollegiate Track Meet held yesterday at Molson Stadium. The five colleges included were, McGill, Macdonald, Dawson, Carleton and Bishops.

It was beautiful, but cold, and the meet was a bit late in starting, but once underway it rolled along nicely. McGill placed in every event, but Macdonald put up a hard fight, in fact at one time the Redmen were leading the Aggies by only three points.

Ken Wagner of McGill was the individual star of the meet as he picked up 15 points by winning the shot put, discus and the 110 yards high hurdles. He was followed by Al Rankin of Carleton College who had 10 points.

EXCITEMENT

Macdonald won the mile relay which was the most thrilling race of the afternoon. The Aggies were far in the lead when the 440 and

Blues in Sat. Soccer Match

This Saturday the McGill soccer team will take the field (The Upper Field that is) against Toronto in the final game of a home and home series. The first game, played in Toronto last Saturday, found Our Boy's on the short end of a 4-2 count in a total point round. Proceedings get under way at 2.30. No charge for admission to the 300 seats provided, with exception of the energy expended in climbing to the field above Molson Stadium.

An exhibition game is slated for tonight at 8 p.m. when McGill plays host to the North End squad. Soccer has not been receiving the support it deserves from the student body and reports from Toronto indicate that these teams have developed the game to a high calibre of proficiency.

Intramural Swimming Meet To Be Held November 9th

The McGill Intramural Swimming Championships slated for November 9 promises to be a meet of broken records.

The School of Physical Education has a monopoly on the eight meet marks, holding four. Science follows a close second with three, while Medicine holds the one remaining. Five of these records were set at the last meet which would indicate that the McGill swimmers are getting faster each year.

OLDEST MARK

The record of longest standing is in the 50-yds. free style. The time of 26.8 seconds was created in February, 1946 by Gilles Archambault, a Phys. Ed. student. The only other two records to remain unbroken last year were the medley relay and the 100-yds. free style; both set in 1946-47 championships. It is quite possible that even these will fall this year on Nov. 9 at the 1948-49 meet.

The following are the present Intramural Championship Meet records:

75 yds. Medley Relay — 42.9 sec. — (Christie, Webster Hope) Sc-Jan. 47.

50 yds. Free Style — 26.8 seconds G. Archambault, Ph. Ed. 46.

100 yds. Free Style — 60.9 seconds, E. Young, Med. Jan. 47.

50 yds. Back stroke — 33.0 sec. J. McLean, Sc. Nov. 47.

100 yds. Back Stroke — 1:16.0 sec., J. McLean, Sc. Nov. 47.

100 yds. Breast Stroke—35.4 sec. R. Norman, Ph. Ed. Nov. 47.

50 yds. Breast Stroke—1:22.2 sec. W. Osterman, Ph. Ed. Nov. 47.

100 yds. Free style Relay — 52.3 sec. Marshall, Mingie, Norman Asterman, Nov. 47.

"Would you like to have lectures begin at 8 instead of 9 in the morning?" was the topic at the McGill Debating Society tryouts for intercollegiate debating yesterday in the New Room of the Student Union. Professor LaViolette acted as judge, and Dave Rubinstein as chairman.

Those speaking for the affirmative were: S. Philips, Morris Kelly, Vincent O'Donnell and Peter Satterthwaite. For the negative: Roland LaPrairie, Peter Sinclair, Ben Lubell, Gerald Charnas, Herman Silverman, Dan Morris, Hy Reiser, Al Gold, Douglas Goltman, and Harry Mintz.

ring performance belying her relative inexperience. She plunged right into her character, and never once emerged to give a false action or emotion. Her diction was at all times clear, but unfortunately the physical texture of her voice is not perfectly suited for the stage, and it tires easily. Her changing from a distraught lover to a woman defending her mother and brother from her father was a gripping thing to watch.

Paul Blouin, as Jake was a little stiff throughout the entire performance. His occasional outbursts of emotion were done adequately, but they were all done the same way. There was little or no change, or variation in his acting. His dialect was decidedly unconvincing, and his diction was not clear. His whole fault, we think, is that he did not appear to have that necessary, and happy faculty of concentrating on the characterization, and actually being that character, thinking his thoughts and acting as he would act were he a real person.

Eric Matheson, as the malevolent Papa brought forth his ugly qualities in a superficial manner, in obvious words and actions. But as for displaying his cruelty continually and evenly, he missed the mark. At times, when it was called for, he was scarcely vehement enough, and he never fully succeeded in rousing himself to towering heights of anger. His dialect was excellent, but completely different from Mama's. Which is right is anyone's guess.

Althea McLean, as the gossip Mrs. Yoder, and Ray Hawn as the State-Trooper were both excellent. We strongly recommend this play as an interesting and entertaining experience.

Mr. Bowie-Reed and his followers have carried out not a constitutional and democratic election but what is in effect a shady coup d'etat: an action which is not only a threat to every campus club but a reflection on the integrity and good name of the student body.

Mme. Casgrain
Speaks Today
In Union at 5

Today at 5:00 p.m. in the Union Ballroom, Mme. Therese Casgrain, national vice-president of the C.C.F. and outstanding woman campaigner in the province of Quebec, will address an open meeting sponsored by the McGill C.C.F. Club.

Liberal

Her father and husband former Liberal Members of Parliament, the latter now judge of the Superior Court, Mme. Casgrain first entered politics in 1912 as a candidate, placing second out of five candidates, the other four being men.

Women's Vote

A prominent campaigner for equal civil rights for women of Quebec, in 1940 she helped win the vote and recently succeeded in getting family allowance cheques mailed to mothers of Quebec families, as in other provinces, instead of to fathers.

Labour Problems

Mme. Casgrain has made extensive and direct study of labor problems and has served on a great many committees and organizations, including Dominion Health Council, Canadian Welfare Council, Canadian Association for Adult Education, Health League of Canada, and British Commonwealth League. She has served on the Minimum Wage Board and was Price Advisor for the Wartime Prices and Trade Board.

politics in the Labor Club, particularly no dirty politics of the Communist variety," Brzezinski concluded.

The vital question of membership was put before the audience by the club's membership secretary, Clarence Fiske. He stated that the club aims at an enrolment figure of 300 or more McGill students, and that, in order to make membership more available, the fees will be reduced from 75 cents to 25 cents.

Some controversy arose over one of Mr. Fiske's statements concerning club approval of membership. Questions from the floor that bombarded the chair were silenced only by a statement by the president specifying the qualifying conditions: "be a McGill student, attend a business meeting, and pay 25 cents."

Additional proposed activities for the S.L.C. were set forth. They included student polls, if permitted by the S.E.C., and a program of labor study sessions.

At six o'clock the meeting was declared closed. The new executive had weathered its first storm. The ballroom emptied rapidly.

The Daily extends its apologies to Gilles Gagnon for the confusion which resulted in the omission of his picture from yesterday's Daily.

D.V.A. Students Policy
Is Summarized Below

In order to avoid misunderstanding the following points of D.V.A. policy are summarized below:

1. D.V.A. assistance up to grad-for the veteran who continues to make satisfactory progress.

2. Extension beyond the period of earned service entitlement may be granted if the requisite standard is maintained, continuously from the last year completely covered by D.V.A.

3. Post graduate work (not medicine, dentistry or law) is in a different category. Whereas undergraduate work is a right for the satisfactory student, postgraduate work is a privilege. It is no longer primarily the veteran's interest, but rather the public interest which determines whether further assistance may be granted.

4. Where the public interest is involved, extension of entitlement for post graduate work may be granted.

5. As with undergraduate work so with post graduate work, no interruption beyond the normal summer recess may be taken without proper authorization.

Further information may be obtained at Room 11, Arts Building.
